

Our views on dreams, hope and ambitions:

- Dreams are important for all ages. Dreams encompass goals , ambitions and more. They give your life purpose, direction, and meaning. They shape your life choices, help you build toward the future, and give you a sense of control and hope
- Having no dreams or no ambitions isn't bad for you and won't do harm. It's not necessary to have dreams, even though they're good for you, because you can still achieve in life even without dreams. It may be harder if you don't know what to do with life, but you can certainly find your way in life.
- My dreams and most teenagers' dreams are to find their dream job, or one that they're happy with and are well-paid. Also to have a loving wife probably and have kids.

Like

Comment

Tom

Wow that's amazing! I have many dreams too and I really believe that by setting goals you can stay motivated and try even more in order to succeed..

David

Well I don't really believe in having dreams, so I don't I really agree with you